Tennis TIPS

Submitted by Bill O'Boyle

Warriors, fall 2014 season is here. I encourage you to set some performance and outcome goals for the upcoming season. The best method for setting new goals is to revisit last season. What were you happy with and where do you need improvement. Moving forward with your game is done one step at a time. I suggest trying to identify your weakest area. It could be in your strokes, your movement, your need for improved mental toughness or learning new winning court strategies. A chain is only as strong as its weakest link.

Your job is to identify that weak link and work on making it stronger. It is not so difficult to work on one area of your game and as it gets stronger so does your overall game and confidence. Engaging the services of a professional will speed up the process and don't forget to use that ball machine. Remember it's not the amount of time spend on the court it is the quality of time.

I will be conducting clinics out of Rea Woods this fall and would love to help you win your next match. My clinic will consist of the usually 4 persons for hour and half and I am available also for individual lessons. If you are interested in joining one of my groups or want to bring your own group please let me know.

Warriors love to conquer.

OCTOBER Camel Living

Neighborhood News | 29

Anne Buresh Interior Design clients receive the same attention to detail and benefits of good design as owner Anne Buresh has used to transform her own Foxcroft home.

"A home's design is meant to be comfortable and welcoming, and my passion is to do so with elegance and style. I love to transform a home into an awe-inspiring living space. That's what I bring to my clients," the designer says.

Perhaps inspired by her renovation efforts as well as her family's historic home (her grandparents' home in Halifax was the former home of UNC founder William R. Davie and is now owned by the state of North Carolina as a historic site soon to be open to the public), Anne has transformed her clients' Charlotte homes into warm, comfortable personal spaces with a touch of style and elegance.

"The best gift you can give yourself is a well-designed home. That's a home that is well thought out with a layout for functionality that reflects your personality. Sometimes people don't realize how much of an effect that has on your sense of well-being and even health," she says.

Just as in a home, Anne points out that work spaces should be designed to be inspiring to work smarter as well as an inviting and comfortable space for conducting business. "Many of us spend many hours at work. I think good design in these spaces is just as important as in the home."

She is often asked why you should work with an interior designer. "The value of hiring a designer is to allow an expert you trust to interpret your family's lifestyle and personality into a comfortable, inviting home that enhances the lives of those living in it," is her answer. Her clients can attest to the fact that belief is core to her business.

"I work to understand the client's personality and how they live by listening intently. I look around at how they live and what they like. I've even been known to go into a client's closet to see what colors they are attracted to," she laughs.

"My passion is to help make their dreams come true while adhering to good balance, scale, proportion, contrast and color. Rooms with a good flow -- that's furniture plan, color scheme and lighting -- have a calm and peaceful effect and lighting are significant in the design process."

Anne Buresh Interior Design offers a range of services to clients -- from on site inspirational design consultation to full service design services including sourcing of furniture and other materials to set up and final presentation.

With all services, Anne personally sits down with each client in advance and goes over a detailed budget for the project.

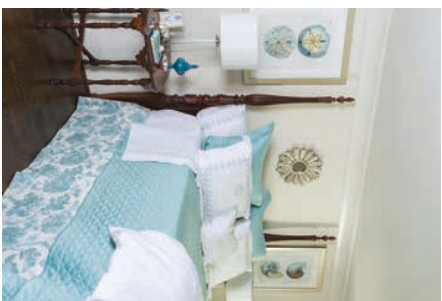

"That way we all know what to expect," she explained. "The only surprises I want clients to experience in the end is how beautiful and functional their home has become."

Anne is affiliated with an international design group and attends retreats and seminars with other interior designers from around the world.

Through her design firm, Anne is able to give back to the community and the children's school. She regularly donates her services to charity events such as Providence Day School and Speedway Charities Symposium at the Mint and Children's Theater. She is a member of Femprofessionals, the Halifax Chapter of the DAR and the auxiliary at the Mint Museum.

"As a final touch for my clients, I leave a trademark bowl of almonds on a table. The almonds, a symbol of good fortune and health, are for guests and of course, the family members," Bureh said. "What better way greeting your guests than with wishes of good fortune and health?"

While Anne Bureh Interior Design continues to expand, Anne can always find time in her busy schedule to meet with a new client to discuss their hopes and dreams for their home.

"That's where my passion lies," she said. "I love to take your dreams and make them a reality for you and your family."

"I'd like to congratulate long time Montibello resident and Artist extraordinaire, my dear friend, Gina Strumpf for being highlighted in this October issue of Camel Living."

I have known Gina personally for 20 years and can tell you she puts her heart and soul into each of her incredible pieces of art.

This photo shows where I recently enjoyed taking a painting class from Gina... suffice it to say... I will stick with real estate."
